The Management of Michigan Wolves

Nancy Warren

UP resident and Executive Director of the National Wolfwatcher Coalition

Since 1993 Nancy has been committed to dispelling myths and unfounded fears associated with wolves by investigating facts and studying the scientific research.

Her passion began when she learned that there were a handful of wolves in Michigan's Upper Peninsula and became involved by attending workshops, conferences and lectures. She quickly realized that for wolves to survive there needs to be human tolerance and believes one way to increase social tolerance is through education.

She volunteers her time serving on the Timber Wolf Alliance Advisory Board; MI Wolf Management Advisory Council; Michigan Wolf Advisory Council for the Keep Michigan Wolves Protected Campaign; Executive Director, National Wolfwatcher Coalition; Northwood Alliance Inc Board of Directors; Acting President Upper Peninsula Environmental Coalition and the Ottawa National Forest Resource Advisory Committee
